(LIVth YEAR.) THE (No. 2767.)

MARYLAND GAZETTE.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1798.

FRANCFORT, September 1.

ON the 29th ultimo, the French army under general Joubert was put in motion; it is divided into four divisions: That under general Hautpoult is ſtationed at Bergen, near Stegen, &c. The main body of the army conſiſting of two diviſions, about 18,000 men ſtrong, under general Joubert; and thoſe troops lately cantoned in th foreſt of Weſterwald, in Weteravia, moved on the 29th and 30th ultimo, from Hoechſt to Numburg, Friedberg, Wetzlar, Gieſſen, as far as Lauterbach, on the ſkirts of Fulda. Gieſſen is the central point of this army, and its chief rendezvous. On the 30th ult. in the afternoon, the head quarters of the commander in chief, with nine generals, and 150 ſtaff officers, came to Friedberg, from whence it will be removed in a few days to Gieſſen. Should a rupture take place, the French it is ſaid, will direct their march into Franconia. On the 31ſt ult. about 8000 French troops encamped before Homburg, on the mountains. They are to remain as long as their poſſeſſions, from Numburg to Gieſſen, till the deciſion expected from Raſtadt ſhall have arrived. The whole Weſterwald, from Dents to Kocnigſtein, is full of French troops, who are all advancing. General Hautpoult is with his ſtaff at Eberfeld. At Cologne, and other places on the left bank of the Rhine, the inhabitants mount guard.

General Leſebre is at Raſtadt, to concert meaſures with the French miniſters. The private delegates of the Palatinate and Duex Ponts, Heſſe, Darmſtadt, Baden, the houſes of Naſſau, &c. have delivered, on the 26th ultimo, a very urgent pro memoria to the deputation of the empire, purporting, that as a ſpeedy peace can alone ſave Germany, and prevent and avert its entire diſſolution, they are authoriſed by their conſtituents to propoſe to the deputation, to make every poſſible conceſſion to the French in the preſent critical ſituation of affairs. The ſame delegates alſo addreſſed a note to the French miniſters on the ſame day, repreſenting the horrors, ravages and oppreſſions which their reſpective countries have ſuffered by the war, which has already laſted 7 years. They declare it to be the wiſh of the ſtates and princes of the empire to have a ſpeedy peace; and conclude by expreſſing their confidence in the moderation of the great nation in her demands. The duputation of the empire alſo receives petitions from all quarters, praying the acceleration of peace.

The deputation of congreſs, according to letters from Raſtadt of the 30th ultimo. A more conciliatory anſwer is now expected from the latter; but, it is ſaid, that new demands will again be made, eſpecially one for the Batavian republic. The Dutch agent at Raſtadt, citizen Buch, has been recalled to the Hague, and citizen Aurie, French ſecretary of legation in Bavaria, is gone through Raſtadt to Vienna.

The landgrave of Heſſe Caſſel has ordered all the frontier places of the county of Hanau to be occupied with troops, to ſecure its neutrality.

The Hamburg paper of the 7th ſays,—"The opening of the campaign is not diſtant, as military hoſpitals and magazines are again eſtabliſhed near the left bank of the Rhine."

RASTADT, September 12.

The deputation of the Empire, on the 10th, voted its concluſum in anſwer to the laſt French note, which is the ſame in ſubſtance that it was expected to be. The deputation conſents to cede the Iſland Peter's-Ave, but requires the reſtoration of Kehl and Caſſel. This concluſum was, on the 11th, ratified, and delivered as a note to the French miniſter, by the Auſtrian plenipotentiary. The latter, however, ſtill declares that Auſtria will never conſent to any demand on the right bank of the Rhine, nor accede to any ſuch conceſſion by the deputation.

BASLE, September 11.

The inhabitants of the canton of Underwald, determined to perſiſt in their refuſal of taking the oaths, intrenched themſelves in a very advantageous ſituation near Stantz, where, on the 9th inſtant, they were attacked by general Schauenberg, with a large train of artillery. One body of French croſſed the lake and landed near Stantz, and another marched over the mountains, by which means the inſurgents were ſurrounded; they, however, defended themſelves with the moſt obſtinate valour. At length, notwithſtanding, they were obliged to give way, and all their artillery, &c. fell into the hands of the victors; their loſs is eſtimated at 1,500 beſides wounded. The town of Stantz is almoſt wholly deſtroyed.

The ſowing is general Schauenberg's letter.

"Head quarters, Lucern, July 9, 6h, 15m, P. M.

"You will learn with pleaſure, citizen directors, that victory has remained faithful to the republicans. We have occupied the diſtrict of Stantz, after a battle which laſted from five o'clock this morning until now: all that afflicts me is, that this day has coſt much blood, but we had to do with rebels, whom is was neceſſary to reduce.—Health and conſideration.

(Signed) SCHAUENBERG."

The general is now about to enter the canton of Schwitz. He has publiſhed, that if the inhabitants ſurrender at diſcretion, the troops ſhall preſerve good order; but that if they make the leaſt reſiſtance, they ſhall be treated as were thoſe of Underwald.

In a note lately delivered to the councils of the Griſons, is the following remarkable paſſage: "Baron Cronthal, Imperial charge d'affairs, has aſſured us, amicably and officially, that the emperor was reſolved to interpoſe in favour of the independence of the Griſon league, and of the maintenance of their laws; that he would take under his protection thoſe who defended this independence, eſpecially if he was deſired to do ſo by the three leagues united."

PARIS, September 8.

An order has been iſſued by the emperor of Ruſſia to all perſons in a public capacity to take the oath of fidelity to his perſon, and of hatred againſt republicaniſm and anarchy.

HAVRE, September 11.

At 9 o'clock an Engliſh cutter appeared before the entrance of this port with a flag of truce. An officer was diſpatched on board the cutter at three quarters paſt nine. He returned with a packet, and ſome hours ſince he ſet out with an anſwer to it.

N. B. We are this moment informed of the object of the flag of truce to propoſe a cartel. They only aſſured us that our frigates might go in and out, and that they ſhould not be attacked but by an equal force, and they promiſed to give no aſſiſtance to the vanquiſhed. The letter was dictated by pride and folly; it was ſigned Syerlings.—The commandant propoſed to oppoſe himſelf with his frigate, the Jaſon, ſingly, againſt any frigate that might be ſent. This is the ſecond time ſuch a bravado has been allowed.

The anſwer was, that the perfidy of their nation was too well known; that we had but too long been aware how little reliance was to be placed on their words, and that unleſs they retired, our cannon would compel them.

We have juſt had a gale from the N. W. which compelled the enemy to put out to ſea.

LONDON, October 1.

Semonville and Marat, who were arreſted in the Griſons, in 1793, and ſent to Mantua, have obtained, from the legiſlature of the Ciſalpine republic, an indemnification of 300,000 livres, to be levied upon the property of the chiefs of the Griſons, in the Valteline.

Count Cobenzel, in his journey from Peterſburg to Vienna, went out of his way for the purpoſe of viſiting Mittau, where he had a ſecret conference with the count de St. Prieſt, prime miniſter of Louis the 18th, which laſted two hours. He only ſaw his majeſty in public. This viſit appears ſo contrary to the part which count Cobenzel has acted for ſome years paſt, particularly at Udina and Campo Formio, that it affords grounds for many conjectures very different from thoſe which have ariſen from the former conduct of the Auſtrian miniſter.

The deputation of the empire has conſented to cede the iſland of Peter's-Ave, in the Rhine, to France, as was mentioned in the laſt mail, but requires the reſtoration of Kehl and Caſſel. This concluſion was ratified on the 11th ultimo, and delivered to the French miniſters.

The Amphion frigate, in company with the Speedwell brig, has captured a veſſel of about 200 tuns burthen, laden with hemp, iron, and other naval ſtores, bound from Peterſburg to Amſterdam, ſuppoſed to be worth 10,000l.—The prize is arrived at Yarmouth.

In conſequence of information having been received by government that the French had prepared ſeveral veſſels of various deſcriptions with combuſtibles, for the purpoſe of ſetting fire to our ſhips at Spithead, as well as thoſe in the harbour, and to Portſmouth dock-yards, orders have been received by the guard-ſhips at St. Helens, &c. to examine every veſſel that arrives, and to detain ſuch as are in the leaſt ſuſpicious.

PORTSMOUTH, September 28.

Captain Talbot took a Frenchman out of a prize which he had diſcovered ſoundering at ſea, who informed him, that on Monday the 18th inſt. near Breſt, two French line of battle ſhips, and 11 frigates, paſſed the veſſel he was taken in, under Engliſh colours, ſteering for the coaſt of Ireland—they had troops on board, but what number he could not tell. He further gave information, that the French papers had announced the death of Buonaparte, after landing in Egypt.

BALLYNA, September 24.

We have been here for ſome time in the greateſt dread of being deſtroyed by the rebels; but now, thank God, we are extricated from thoſe fears—A ſore defeat has been given to the deluded wretches by his majeſty's army, in which above 1000 of them were killed between this place and Foxford. In this vicinity they had committed great depredation. On entering houſes they firſt drank any wine they could get, then deſtroyed the furniture, and even the gardens, and afterwards carried off all plunder that was portable to Killala. They were going to hang Colonel, whoſe houſe they plundered. Some of the French who lately landed at Killala were found among them, and are now priſoners.

HALIFAX, (Nova Scotia) October 2.

HORRID MURDER.

On Thurſday evening laſt one Bembridge, a young man reſident at Dartmouth, who had for ſome time paſt diſcovered an attachment to Miſs Ruſſel, daughter of Mr. Ruſſel of that place, went to Mr. Ruſſel's houſe about 9 o'clock, entered the room where the family were ſitting, and expreſſed a wiſh to ſee Miſs Ruſſel. This Mrs. Ruſſel refuſed and expreſſed her diſpleaſure at his attention to her daughter. The villain probably expected; for, having provided himſelf with a long butcher's knife, he took an opportunity immediately after, and hurried it with the moſt ſavage violence in the boſom of the unfortunate girl, who almoſt inſtantly expired. The wretch then ſtabbed himſelf in two places, but we believe not mortally. Aſſiſtance was called, and he was immediately taken into cuſtody.

BOSTON, November 12.

The frigate Conſtitution, capt. Nicholſon, arrived here on Saturday evening laſt—ſhe is brought in here, we underſtand, to repair ſome damage received in her maſts, &c.

VIENNA, September 12.

Official accounts from Conſtantinople, which were yeſterday brought by couriers to the Engliſh and Ruſſian envoys in this city, bring advice that admiral Nelſon had attacked the French fleet before Alexandria, and partly burned and ſunk almoſt the whole of it. Some ſhips which made their eſcape, fell into the hands of the Turks, and met a ſimilar fate; ſo that, of this great French fleet, ſcarcely a ſingle tranſport is left.

The Turkiſh merchants here have likewiſe received letters from Conſtantinople, (but of an earlier date than the above official diſpatches) which mention that the Turkiſh nation is highly incenſed againſt the French, and that the populace have clamouroufly demanded that the French charge d'affaires ſhall be ſent to the priſon of the Seven Towers. In the meantime, orders have been given by the Porte to arreſt all the French ſhips in the Turkiſh harbours. The embargo on all French property has been carried into execution, and the conſul at Jaffay has been the firſt arreſted.

The Turkiſh merchants here have likewiſe received letters from Smyrna, which ſtate, that Buonaparte had advanced with his army towards Grand Cairo; and publiſhed his invitation to liberty in the Arabic language; but that the inhabitants had only been more enraged againſt him, and that he had been forced to retreat.

[The London papers do not contain any further material accounts. The rebellion in Ireland was tapering away, and the negotiations at Raſtadt ſtill wore more a warlike, than a pacific aſpect. The Auſtrian deputation have poſitively refuſed their conſent to the French demands on Kehl and Caſſel. The news of the defeat of the French fleet is official, and has been celebrated in England. That of the defeat of Buonaparte, though not official, obtained general credence.]

It is now obvious that the Directory had received bad news from Buonaparte, long before the 14th September, when it was permitted to leak out of their journal. The very ſudden change which took place a ſhort time before the ſailing of the Perſeverance, may be imputed to the unfavourable accounts from Buonaparte, the deſtruction of their long projected ſcheme of eaſtern aggrandizement.

What faith can be placed in a nation, that is juſt only when ſhe is unfortunate?

TRENTON, November 20.

CURIOSITIES.

A Rutland, (Vermont) paper, of the 23d October, mentions as fact, that freſh ſtrawberries were picked at Newhaven, in that ſtate, on the 14th of that month; that twenty-four cabbage heads were growing on one ſtalk, in a garden in Rutland, and that an apple tree in an orchard in that town then had apples on it of a ſecond growth, as large as pigeons eggs, and other trees were in bloſſom ! ! !——Twang."

CHARLESTON, November 2.

From the Barbadoes Gazette.

To the Editor.

St. Anne's Caſtle, 2d June 1793.

Sir,

By inſerting the following, you will much oblige, yours, &c.

JOHN REYNOLDS.

A few days paſt, was diſcovered in a garden near St. Anne's barracks, a ſnake of a moſt enormous ſize, meaſuring in length 13 yards and a half; the circumference of its body by an exact meaſure was 29 inches; ſuch an uncommon phenomenon never before appeared in this iſland, and which muſt no doubt claim the attention of all naturaliſts. It is truly aſtoniſhing, that on the ſnake's being firſt diſcovered, he flew at every object he ſaw with the fierceneſs of a lion; ſeveral muſket balls went through his body, notwithſtanding which he made his way at the diſtance of 150 yards, and remained ſtationed at the ſteps leading to the barrack, when a rifle ball put an end to his exiſtence.

As no doubt a ſnake of ſuch uncommon dimenſions muſt excite the attention of the curious, it may be viewed every day, at a ſmall houſe cloſe adjoining the barrack, from 11 o'clock in the forenoon till 5 in the evening. It is curious to obſerve, that on taking out its entrails, a ſmall pocket book was found, containing a ſilver thimble, a pair of ſciſſars, and a new ſeven ſhilling gold coin, all which will be ſent home for the inſpection of the royal ſociety, whoſe diligent reſearches will, no doubt, be exerted to aſcertain how it could have made its appearance on this iſland.

There is no doubt of a ſtrong ſuppoſition, that this ſnake came over in one of the Guinea ſhips, lately arrived; as ſeveral European writers make mention of ſnakes of a large ſize being found in the interior of ſeveral parts of Africa.

It is extraordinary that the teeth of this animal meaſured four inches in length, and its tongue is infinitely larger than that of an ox. A negro boy about 14 years of age, excited by curioſity, touched the tip of its tongue with his fore finger and thumb, and ſuch was the inſtantaneous effect of its venemous poiſon, that his finger and thumb were inſtantly cut off, otherwiſe the faculty ſuppoſe he muſt have loſt his arm.

BALTIMORE, November 21.

Minute of facts ſtated in the diſpatches to lord St. Vincent.

The French tranſports ran into the Nile, and Buonaparte landed with only a few days proviſions on hand, with about thirty-eight thouſand men, two thouſand having been cut to pieces on an attempt to land at Alexandria, where they expected a paſſive reception. The laſt diſpatches ſtate, that the only ſupplies Bounaparte could get were a little rice and water, brought to him on camels by the Arabs, but that the Turks were taking meaſures, not only to cut off this ſuccour, but to march againſt him.

The crew of the Timoleon, when the ſhip took fire, attempted to ſave themſelves on ſhore, but were all cut to pieces. The L'Orient's people were in part deſtroyed in the ſame manner, and blown up, only a few eſcaped, perhaps into the woods to ſtarve.

The French fleet at the time of the action, had only five days proviſions on board.

[We further learn by Mr. Yates, who came paſſenger in the America, and who was favoured by admiral Jervis himſelf with the official particulars above related, that none of the tranſports were deſtroyed, having probably run up the bay of Roſetta into ſhallow water, and that nothing certain had tranſpired to unravel the future projects of Buonaparte, whether he meant to ſettle down in Egypt, or whether he caſt his wiſhful eyes on the diſtant ſhore of Mangalore. His ſituation at beſt appeared to be hopeleſs—His armed ſhips captured or deſtroyed, his tranſports blocked up, and his retreat cut off—his proviſions nearly exhauſted, and a ſupply precarious at leaſt, if not unattainable; and above all, preſſed on every ſide by hordes of Saracens, too barbarous to be worked upon even by French deluſion. The forebodings of the invader muſt forcibly aſſure him that the deſpoiler of Italy and the conqueror of Egypt will never be united in the ſame man, and that he has, fortunately for the world, perhaps, left the channel of Britain to periſh on the banks of the Nile.]

We very confidently aſſured our readers, ſome weeks ſince, that Buonaparte's fleet had met with a defeat, and that the French government, by their "gag laws," had endeavoured to ſtop the circulation of the news; but that admiral Jervis, as ſoon as the winds of the Mediterranean would admit, would receive and tranſmit the official account to England, when the world would ſoon be informed of the grateful event.

" Blest be the pencil! whose consoling pow'r,
Soothing soft friendship in her pensive hour,
Dispels the cloud, with melancholy fraught,
That absence throws upon her tender thought.
Blest be the pencil! whose enchantment gives
To wounded Love the food on which he lives:
Rich in this gift, tho' cruel ocean bear
The youth to exile from his faithful fair,
He in fond dreams hangs o'er her glowing cheek,
Still owns her present, and still hears her speak!"
